Evidence-based interventions to promote positive parenting: major outcomes from the Tenerife Winter School

María José Rodrigo is Professor at the Department of Developmental Psychology and Education at the University of La Laguna, Spain. Her research interest is to develop a model of how to change parental cognitions and child-rearing practices in at-risk families. The project combines basic research and intervention studies done in cooperation with Ana Delia Correa and María Luisa Máiquez, Guacimara Rodríguez and Juan Carlos Martin. Furthermore, María José Rodrigo is President of the European Society for Developmental Psychology (ESDP).
