
Matthias Reitzle

Friedrich Schiller University of Jena, Germany

Innovative Methods for the Study of Change and Development

Matthias Reitzle is an associate Professor of Developmental Psychology at the Friedrich Schiller University of Jena, Germany. He received his doctorate at the Technical University of Berlin. He was an executive research associate at the Institute for Demoskopie and a research associate with the Child and Adolescent Psychiatric Services of the Canton of Zurich, Switzerland. His research interests include continuity and discontinuity of problem behaviour, social change and career development. One of his publications is 'The connections between adulthood transitions and the self-perception of being adult in the changing contexts of East and West Germany' in the European Psychologist (2006).